DW TURNER ADDS INTERNATIONAL, HEALTHCARE EXPERTISE
Jamie Estrada brings international and economic development experience and Jennifer Chavez offers a wealth of healthcare and education knowledge

Albuquerque, NM (June 30, 2011) – DW Turner, Inc. today announced that Jamie P. Estrada has joined its executive staff as Vice-President of DWT's growing International & Economic Development Division and Jennifer Chavez has joined as the Director of Healthcare & Education division. Mr. Estrada and Ms. Chavez will expand DW Turner's international, national and local capabilities and serve energy, technology, healthcare, and education sectors.

DW Turner is an integrated, specialized communications firm with deep experience and global reach. The ability to create memorable, effective and creative client solutions that win sets DW Turner apart from many other public relations companies.

"I am excited to welcome Jamie and Jennifer to our team," said Doug Turner, founder and CEO of DW Turner, Inc. "These two stellar additions prime the firm as a catalyst for public/private partnerships, increased international business relations and improved healthcare and education services here in New Mexico."

Jamie P. Estrada's range of expertise includes international trade development and facilitation, public affairs, strategic planning and creation of public sector marketing programs. From 2005 to 2009, Estrada served as U.S. Deputy Assistant Secretary of Commerce for Manufacturing. Before joining the Commerce Department as a presidential appointee, Estrada worked for Intel Corporation, beginning as a financial analyst and advancing to several operational, strategic and management positions over a nearly ten year period. Estrada received his B.A. in Economics and B.B.A. in Finance with university honors from New Mexico State University as well as his M.B.A. from Georgetown University.

Jennifer Chavez has done work for several Fortune 500 companies as well as the National Resource Defense Council, where she managed publicity for NRDC Board Members Robert Redford and Robert F. Kennedy Jr. She also served as marketing director for a major university's health sciences center. Prior to that, she served as communications director for the State of New Mexico's Public Education Department, crafting, launching and driving major educational campaigns, reinforcing Jennifer's solid relationships with education reporters across the nation. Jennifer holds a bachelor's degree in history from the University of Chicago and completed graduate work at Northwestern University. She was also a Fulbright Scholar and is fluent in Italian, Spanish and French.
